Once again Henry County citizens were shocked and angered by the news of yet another violent slaughter of unarmed Americans resulting in 49 deaths and 53 wounded. Our hearts go out to the victims and their families, and we salute the Orlando area law enforcement professionals who put themselves in harm's way to bring this attack to the inevitable conclusion.

As law enforcement professionals uncover the facts related to the perverted reasons for this act, the debates rage on between politicians as to the cause for such grotesque violence. While they argue there is one thing that has become clear to the American people; there are violent persons, whether driven by a radicalized ideology or unbridled criminal aggression, who want to hurt us.

It is impossible to protect every venue that may be a possible target by terrorists. But that doesn't mean that odd things aren't being noticed by the average person. Think about your workplace, favorite entertainment spots, athletic stadiums, schools, places of worship, vacation spots and your drive to or from those places. Would you notice something odd or out of place?

More now than ever the public is needed to partner with law enforcement to identify potential dangers. The problem has been that the average person doesn't know what to do if they notice something odd or they may think no one will listen to them. That is not the case, from the Federal level to local law enforcement, we want to know! The best way to prevent something bad from happening is to know in advance. This means gathering intelligence and you can help us keep you safe.

If you see an act of violence call 911 and don't hesitate, you may save lives.

Remember!

"If you see something, say something!"
